The gigantic famine which has for so long Central Kingdom and the fearful sufferings caused by it have tended to withdraw attention from the distress which has for many only on the "filet de cheval à la jockey. Club, months skisted in a province much nearer to us. Our Canton correspondent stated a few days back that the Lieutenant-Governor of Kwangtung had, in response to a petition from the provincial gentry, sanctioned the appropriation of the sum of ten thousand dollars from the Treasury towards the relief of the distressed districts in that province, a significant proof that widespread want and suffering is being experienced by a portion of the inhabitants. Such is indeed, and has been for many months, the case, and is likely to continue to be so for some time to Yuen districts, situate on the North River, were inundated in consequence of the embankments on both sides of the river giving way, immense damage was done to the crops, and many houses and other buildings wors entirely swept away. There was great loss of property, and thousands were rendered homeless and destitute. The embankment in the Tsing Yuan district was temporarily repaired, but owing to the careless workmanship, it again gave way - early in the current year, and fresh damage was done. At the same time the swollen torrent of the North River coming down into the Pearl River caused a great overflow in the Ko Ming and Kok Shan districts; where much damage was done to the West River rose very high, and the embank. meat had been served out that morning, some and a half millions; Singapore Tla. 1,978,257; Straits Settlements. At the present thousand persons who, having lost their all by the floods, are reduced to the last stage of distress, being houseless and without any means of support. In addition there are many thousands more who are mainly dependent on charity. Some hundreds of the destitute people, finding no prospect of relief, have joined the hordes of robbers who infest the central and northern, parts of the province. and have already given some trouble to ago between four and five o'clock, it being my the Authorities to disperse them, and watch, I saw the complainant with a knife in his sugar, Th. 3,720,494, an increase of The 1,404,093. ceeded in getting aloun, without essistance and sign of what you may expect if you marry an business well established in considered as sure may yet give more. for better for them to set the recipients to work on some usoful undertaking. In the case of the Kwangtung refugees it would have been a simple matter to employ them m reconstructing the broken embankments. and in making a few decent roads to connec Canton with the larger towns of the province. The people would then have the proud satisfaction of knowing they were earning their subsistence, and they would not become, as they do now, domoralised by enforced idleness. The prevalence of poverty and distress in Kwangtung naturally tends to increase the emigration of necessitous natives to this Colony, and to this cause may be due, in some part, the increase in crime in Hongkong:

It is true that one may occasionally come scross some queer old fossil who will gravaly inform you that he considers the repeal of the Corn Laws and of the Conformity Act to have been fatal blunders; but theories have, in general; changed with the murch of wents, and people are beginning to hold less to creeds and parties. and more, every year, to men. Formularies are fast giving way to individuals; personal qualities have more influence over the thoughtful public than party cries, and the question now is not much whether a man belongs professedly or traditionally to such and such a side, as whether his hend be cool, his judgment unbiassed and clear, and his general characteristics these of statesmen and a patriot. To this class belong the Customs banks, and we loubt if there is an instance on record of the collapse of one of them.

Perhaps the most encoessful and one of the wealthiest bankers in China at this present moment is Hu Kwang jung, or Hoo Taotai as he is more commonly called, whose name has been rather prominently brought forward of late in connection with the recent loan, and who has long been known to certain of the Shanghai merchants as a large parchaser of foreign munitions of war. He commenced life as an apprentice to his uncle who was a money dealer in Hangehow, Hu's native place, in a very small line of business, so small in fact, that after have bad been with him a few years heannounced his intention of abandon. ing the business as it did not pay. Hu, however, persuaded his uncle to allow him to keep it on and by dint of much perseverance held his own for several years.
